Notice.

In the matter of petition of Samuel Christenson to obtain a Decree of [illegible] Mortgage given Valentine Glatt satisfied of record. | In the Court of Common Pleas of McKean County, No. [illegible], June Term, 1895.

To all parties concerned:

Please take notice that on the 13th day of April A. D. 1895, Samuel Christenson presented his petition to the Court of Common Pleas of McKean county, Penn., which has been entered and filed therein at the above number and term. The said petition sets forth the following facts, viz:

That on the second day of April A. D. 1871, the said Samuel Christenson, made, executed and delivered to Valentine Glatt a certain indenture of mortgage upon a farm containing [illegible] acres situate in Wetmore township, McKean county, Pa., to secure the payment of the sum of [illegible] dollars in four payments of [illegible] each, which mortgage is recorded in the office of the Recorder of Deeds of McKean county in Mortgage Book Vol. "B," page [illegible]. That final payment was made by the said Samuel Christenson of all the money or amount due thereon more than seven years prior to the presentation of the petition aforesaid. That the said Valentine Glatt, the legal holder of said mortgage has died without entering satisfaction upon the record of the same, and that the said Samuel Christenson is the owner of the mortgaged premises.

[illegible] you the said parties named to wit: the legal representatives of Valentine Glatt, deceased, and any and all other parties concerned, are hereby required to be and appear at the June Term of the Court of Common Pleas of McKean county, Penna., to be held at Smethport, Penna., on the third day of June A. D. 1895 at 2 o'clock p. m., to answer the said petition.

On hearing the news of his appointment to the command of a brigade he mounted his horse and dashed over to the headquarters of the general to whom he owed nearly all his advancement, with a view to protesting. On arriving there he stammered out reasons which had no coherence and was dismissed by the general with the remark that he was suffering from an attack of ill timed modesty, the general adding, "You are a born soldier, Colonel Maynard, and if the war lasts long enough to give you an opportunity you will reach a higher command than that of a brigade."

Once on the road he and Jakey had passed before on their journey together to Chattanooga, Maynard took infinite delight in talking over their "campaign," as he called the mission they had pursued. Jakey became more puffed up with pride at having been with the colonel on that occasion than having ridden with him into Tullahoma. Others had been on his staff on the latter occasion, but he, Jake Slack, alone, had been his boon companion, his confidential friend, on his mission to Chattanooga. When Jakey considered this double honor, he felt that he must certainly have been born in uniform and deprived of it by some malignant fairy soon after coming into the world.

The Chattanooga road was by no means deserted. Wagons under guard, couriers, staff officers followed by orderlies, citizens, negroes, indeed all manner of people and vehicles passing between the different corps of the Army of the Cumberland, met them or were passed by them on the way.

"Jakey," said the colonel, "I remember every moment of the time when I came along this road on my way back from Chattanooga. I was traveling, as the dignitaries say, incog."

"Yer mean by thet ef they'd a knowed what a 'portant person y' war they'd a showed ther respec' by hangin y'."

"Exactly. They would have put several feet between mine and the waving summer grass below. You have a forcible way of expressing yourself, but considering that I'm the subject of your remarks my throat feels clearer at my own more delicate drawing of the picture."

"Reckon," said Jakey, with proper solemnity, remembering that the topic was likely to wound the colonel's feelings.

"On that occasion, Jakey, I did not meet even a mule without my heart jumping up into my throat."

"A rope harness must a skeered y' outen yer skin."

"Especially when I noticed the knots in it. But seriously, Jakey, that experience has filled me with a peculiar dread. Now, suppose some day a Confederate spy should fall into my hands."

"Reckon yer'd hev lots o' fun hangin him."

"You're far out of the way there, my little Solomon. I fear it would be absolutely impossible for me to do such a duty if required of me."

"Yer needn't take him, in the first place."

"It might be my duty to do so."

"Y' mought do like Tom. Tom, he can't never see me when I want ter drive 'im outen pastur. He can see well nuff when I get a ear o' corn fo' 'im, though."

"A good idea, Jakey. With that subtle sophistry of yours you could reason a Methodist minister into dancing a hornpipe, but I fear it's hardly sound enough to enable one so used to deceiving others as I was when a scout to deceive himself. I should do my best, should I take a spy, to turn him over."

"S'posin 'twar a woman?"

"Oh, Lord, Jakey, don't suppose any such thing. I'd have to do my duty in that case just the same as if she were a man. What kind of a looking 'gocart' is that coming down the road?"

A horse was visible in the distance, its long neck stretched out in front of its body, coming toward them at a rapid gait. The rattling of a buggy which it dragged reminded the colonel of the band of a newly recruited regiment. Within sat a woman in a striped dress, sunbonnet and glasses. In short, Jakey Slack at once recognized his old friend, Betsy Baggs.

"Howdy, Miss Baggs," he said as she drove by.

Miss Baggs was the sphinx she had been to Jakey when he met her near Tullahoma. She leveled her spectacles at him, but had no recognition whatever for him.

"Who's your friend?" asked Maynard as the buggy rattled away.

"Thet's Miss Baggs," said Jakey.

"And who's Miss Baggs?"

Jakey paused a long while before replying. There was a problem in his mind suggested by the meeting of Miss Baggs so soon after his conversation with the colonel about capturing a woman spy, for Jakey had a suspicion that Miss Baggs was in some way a Confederate emissary.

"Waal," he said at length, "I reckon she's sweet on Rats."

"Jakey," said the colonel, "there is occasionally a lucidity about your explanations, a shining brightness, which makes my eyes blink. But on the present occasion I think there is dust in them. Would you mind giving me a pointer as to your meaning? By Rats do you mean rodents?"

"What's rodents?" asked Jakey.

Meanwhile the rattling of Miss Baggs' buggy was dying away in the distance.

"Real rats are rodents."

"Not them uns. Rats is a corporal in Major Burke's critter company."

"The corporal's name is quite appropriate to the one you have given his regiment. The woman in the buggy looks as if she'd make a fit vivandiere to a 'critter company' and a fit sweetheart for a corporal of the name of Rats."

Jakey made no reply to this. He was evidently weighed down with some concealed responsibility. The colonel tried to draw him again into conversation, but even "their campaigns" were not sufficient. At last the colonel, realizing that they were near their destination and his young wife, became occupied by his own thoughts. Suddenly he caught sight of a large frame house set back from the road. He gazed upon it with a singular mingling of different feelings. In it he had first met his wife, in it she had concealed him from men and hounds, and there she was now, his wife and the mother of their babe. He gave his horse the spurs. Jakey suddenly drew rein.

"Colonel!" he called.

"What?"

"Miss Baggs."

"Confound Miss Baggs! What of her?"

"Reckon thar's somep'n wrong 'bout her."

"What do you mean?"

"Mebbe she's a 'Foderte spy."

"You little imp, why didn't you tell me that before?" cried the colonel angrily.

"Waal, I hain't sart'in 'bout it nohow, 'n I thought yer moughtn't like fo' to hold onter a woman."

"Jakey," said the colonel impressively, "you have done very wrong. You should have told me of your suspicions at once. Remember I'm a colonel commanding a brigade in the Union army."

The colonel sat irresolute. What should he do? Miss Baggs was now miles away. Jakey only suspected her. His young wife, whom he had not seen for nearly a year, was within a stone's throw of him. Suddenly he drove the spurs again into his horse's flanks and rode on to the gateway of the plantation. There was no need to open the gate, for there was no gate to open. The two rode on to the house through an avenue of trees, and Colonel Maynard dismounted before his horse reached the foot of the steps leading up on to the veranda. A young woman flew through the open front door with all the impulse of a summer storm. In a moment she and Colonel Maynard were closely locked in each other's arms.

"Mark!"

"Laura!"

Jakey sat on old Tom, viewing this collision very much as he would watch two tempest clouds meet in the sky. "Reckon them uns hez got it bad," he remarked sotto voce and with a solemnity that was intended to be reverential.

Colonel Maynard's brigade went into camp on the river bank some five or six miles from the plantation. The colonel insisted on having Jakey Slack with him permanently and sent him home to ask his father's permission, Jakey at the same time bearing an invitation to his sister to visit. Mrs. Maynard, re-enforced by a special request from the colonel that it be accepted. Jakey succeeded in obtaining the desired permission, and after much hesitation Souri decided to accept. Jakey entered the army as a drummer boy, but was not called upon to flourish the sticks. He was at once detailed for duty at brigade headquarters as clerk in the assistant adjutant general's department as a convenient way of making him confidential factotum to the colonel commanding.

Upon getting on the blue and brass of a Union soldier Jakey was very proud of himself, and when placed in close confidential relationship with the commander of a brigade he nearly burst with the emotions generated by the dignity of his position. He was of great use to the colonel, who at once appointed him dispatch bearer between himself and Mrs. Maynard. The domestic nearness of this office only rendered the boy more consequential. He snubbed not only the orderlies attached to the headquarters of the brigade, but would occasionally approach disrespect toward the officers of the staff. As this was largely their fault, for they were continually trying to amuse themselves at Jakey's expense, they bore it good naturedly.

"Why don't you carry that note like any other messenger," said an aid to him one day, "in your belt?"

"Coz I hain't like any other messenger," retorted Jakey. "D'y' reckon a man what carries the colonel's private correspondin' air a common orderly?"

As there was no gainsaying his argument without a seeming detriment of the personal dignity of the brigade commander, Jakey held the field.

CHAPTER IX.

CIPHER DISPATCHES.

It was about a week after the arrival of Colonel Maynard at the Fain plantation. He had returned to his headquarters. Laura was sitting at work on some part of the "recruit's" uniform, while the rain from a September storm beat against the window panes. Souri was with her, and as Colonel Maynard was expecting orders to cross the river with his brigade the two had secured Souri's promise to remain at the plantation till the close of the campaign which was about to open. Souri was up stairs administering to the wants of the younger Maynard, to whom she was devoted. He dropped to sleep, and leaving the chamber on tiptoe she descended to the sitting room. As she entered she glanced out of the window.

"Good gracious! If there isn't Miss Baggs!"

They saw through the rain a horse and buggy making a rapid turn through the gateway.

"Who's Miss Baggs?" asked Laura quickly.

"I met her when coming from the north. She got through the Union lines by playing the part of a country girl. I met her again on this side, and she was a lady. She's coming up to the veranda."

Bobby Lee came up the driveway at such a rapid gait as to astonish the two women looking out of the window. The horse had scarcely stopped in front of the house when Miss Baggs, throwing down the reins, rushed up the steps and knocked loudly at the door.

"Go and see what she wants, Souri. You've met her before."

Souri went quickly to the door. When she opened it and Miss Baggs saw the girl she had met between the lines, for a moment her countenance brightened. Then suddenly her expression changed on remembering that Souri was a Union girl.

"I've no time to explain anything. Call some one, quick, to drive my buggy to the barn and hide me."

Now, Souri knew well enough that Miss Baggs was working in the cause of the Confederacy. But she saw a woman in trouble, and this in her eyes obscured all else. She ushered Miss Baggs into the room where Laura sat.

"This girl wishes to rest with us awhile. I'm going to take her horse to the barn."

Without waiting for a reply she went out, and jumping into the buggy drove it around to the barn. There she directed Uncle Daniel, who ruled the stables of the plantation, to put both horse and buggy inside and shut the doors. Having seen this attended to, she went back to the house.

Meanwhile Miss Baggs stood face to face with Laura Maynard.

"This is a Confederate household, I believe," said the fugitive.

"It is."

"Thank God, you are one of ours."

"No."

"What, Federal?" She turned pale.

"No."

"Then for heaven's sake tell me what you are."

"I am a Confederate married to a Union officer."

There were quick successive flashes of hope and fear on Miss Baggs' face.

"And you will not give me up!"

"Give you up? What do you mean?"

"I am in the Confederate secret service. I have just been recognized by a Union soldier—a cavalryman. He was not mounted, while I was in my buggy. I heard him cry halt. I gave my horse the whip, and before the man could mount I was away and soon turned behind a wood. There is a fork in the road. I took the left road, leading here. He must have taken the other, which leads nowhere. He will discover his mistake, turn back and take the right road. This is the first house he will pass, and he will surely come in to ask if you have seen me."

"Well?"

"You will not betray me!"

Laura thought of the coming of her husband one night months ago, flying, as this woman was flying, for his life.

"No, rest easy on that score. I will do all I can for you."

INDIANS AND THE RAINBOW.

The Zunis Think the Heavenly Phenomenon Embodies the Form of a Demon.

Captain Trevitt W. Olcey of Los Angeles, Cal., for many years stationed in Arizona and New Mexico with the regular army, told about the myths and superstitions of the Zuni Indians to a group of friends at a Broadway hotel one evening.

"In the Zuni mind," said he, "the rainbow has ever been a deified animal, having the attributes of a human being and also the body and some of the functions of a measuring worm. Obviously the striped back and arched attitude of the measuring worm, its sudden appearance and disappearance among the leaves of the plants which it inhabits, are the analogies upon which this personification is based. As the measuring worm consumes the herbage of the plants and causes them to dry up, so the rainbow, which appears only after the rain, is supposed by the simple minded Indian to cause a cessation of rain, and consequently to be the originator of droughts, under the influence of which plants wither away, as they do under the ravages of the measuring worms.

"It will be seen that the visible phenomenon called the rainbow gets by analogy the personality of the measuring worm, while from the worm in turn the rainbow gets its function as a god. Of this the cessation of the rain on the appearance of the rainbow is adduced as proof. The fading of the flowers is attributed to the rainbow, which, consuming their imperceptible existences, thus derives his brilliant coloring, just as it is believed that the measuring worm gets his green, yellow and red stripes from the leaves and flowers which it devours.

"The influence of this union upon the Zuni mind is to place the rainbow among the malignant gods. It is frequently painted on war shields and made a demon to be propitiated, yet shunned. When a rainbow appears in the sky, the Zuni Indians and those of many other tribes turn their backs upon the beautiful sight and covertly imprecate the unfriendly spirit."—New York World.

"THE BRACELET."

It Was Beautiful Until It Became a Reminder of His Doubt.

"Here," he said, "is a bracelet. Wear it always, that like our love it may prove endless and unbroken in its circle." And from a silken case, in which the name of the goldsmith glistened, he drew the pledge of their new affections. She stood before him, radiantly palpitating, as it seemed to him in the ecstasy of his attention—perhaps with the pleasure of so rare a trinket. The diamonds lost their luster in the rapture which her flashing eyes conveyed. Holding her hand, he was adjusting the gift to the flexible wrist into which tapered her well rounded arm—its skin seemed whiter now, as if expressive of so much purity about to receive the binding earnest of his words.

"But," he said, hesitating suddenly, "I must tell you, and yet why should I? This bracelet, by the touch of some mysterious magic—so the jeweler tells me, and yet I can hardly believe it—shrinks about the wrist of her who proves untrue, and its wearer loses forever the use of her hand, which then hangs limp and lifeless, in token of her perfidy."

"Surely," she answered, "you cannot wish to put me to such a test as this who need none. I should wear it were it not to me but an eternal reminder of your doubt, each diamond but an eye to watch—and it is much too gaudy. A plain ring will do for me."—Philadelphia Press.

Indignant.

There used to be an old porter at a certain Irish railway station who was more remarkable for independence of character than attention to his duties.

On one occasion two of the directors were traveling over the line and noticed that the name of this station was not called, the neglect being the more serious as it was a junction. This was made the subject of complaint, and old Charley, who was the delinquent, was promptly brought to book and reprimanded.

He was very wroth that any one should find fault with him and thirsted for revenge. So, keeping a lookout until he saw the directors on their return journey, he stood opposite their carriage and shouted in a stentorian voice:

"Cookstown Junction! Change here for Randalstown, Castledawson, Maghera, felt, Moneymore and all stations on the Cookstown line, and don't say, ye blaggards, ye weren't towld!"—London Answers.

The Tramp's Opportunity.

Queer things happen in this world. A tramp took refuge in an old graveyard in Georgia and prepared for a sound night's rest between two graves. About the hour when churchyards are supposed to "yawn" he was awakened by a strange noise, and on looking up he discovered an escaped convict in the act of filing his shackles. As the tramp stood up the convict, in superstitious terror, fell upon his knees, whereupon the tramp arrested him, delivered him over to the authorities at the camp near by and received a reward of $60.—Atlanta Constitution.

CLOSING SCENES OF THE WAR.

A Confederate Band Which Deserted In a Body to Washington.

In the latter part of the month of March, 1865, Washington saw many signs of collapse of the rebellion. The Confederate army appeared to be badly demoralized, and deserters, who arrived constantly in large numbers, reported that men from Alabama, Georgia, Florida and the Carolinas could not be expected to have any heart in a fight which then seemed only for the defense of Virginia, while their own states were overrun by the armies of the Union. During the month of March more than 3,000 deserters were received at Washington, and great numbers were quartered at Fort Monroe, Annapolis and other points nearer the lines, where they were put to work in the quartermaster's department or in the naval service.

One curiosity of the times was a Confederate regimental band which had deserted in a body with its instruments and was allowed to march through the streets of the national capital playing Union airs. This was one of the oddest signs of the final break up. People recalled a story, told by Hooker, that when the Union army scaled and occupied Lookout Mountain a rebel sentry on duty on the crest of one of the most difficult precipices saw our men pile up in solid masses over steeps which had been thought inaccessible and was so surprised that he forgot to run, but stood with feet rooted to the spot, watching the Union force climbing up, and streaming past him, and driving the enemy far to the rear, until he was left alone, a statue of amazement. Recovering himself at last, he threw down his musket, stripped off his rebel gray jacket, stood on them both, and looking far off to the sunny south stretched out as a map below him, said, "How are you, Southern Confederacy?"

But notwithstanding such indications of a collapse of the rebellion at this very time many northern Union newspapers, led by Horace Greeley and others of his stamp, were demanding that appeals should be made to the southern people "to stop the flow of blood and the waste of treasure," and that some message should be sent to the southerners "so terse that it will surely be circulated and so lucid that it cannot be misconstrued or perverted," by way of an invitation to cease fighting. Curiously enough, the nearer the time came for a final surrender the more fervid was the demand for negotiation and appeal from the unreasonable radicals in the ranks of northern Unionists. But all this was soon to end, and while a small party was asking, "Why not negotiate?" the downfall came.—Noah Brooks in Century.

Food Tin Cans.

In a recent government report by Dr. H. W. Wiley it is stated that in Germany the law requires that the tins employed for holding canned goods shall not contain more than 1 per cent of lead, while in this country there is no restriction whatever in regard to the character of the tin used, the result of this latter fact being the employment of cans in some cases containing as high as 12 per cent of lead. This practice prevails, notwithstanding the unanimity among physiologists as to the effect of lead salts upon the human system, the continual ingestion of even minute quantities of lead into the system being followed eventually by the most serious consequences—painter's colic, lead palsy and other trying diseases well known to physicians being the direct effects of continual exposure of the system to any such minute portions of lead salts. It is said to be possible to exclude the latter by requiring that the tin shall not contain more than, say, 1½ per cent of lead; also that the solder be as free from lead as possible.

In Germany the solder made use of in sealing the cans is not allowed to contain over 10 per cent of lead, while in this country the analysis of numerous samples of the solder applied shows that it contains fully 50 per cent of lead, in addition to this being the lack of care to prevent such solder from coming into contact with the contents of the can, and large surfaces of solder on the seams are often found exposed to the action of the acid contents of the can.

DAYS.

What is the message of days, what is the thought they bring—
Days that darken to winter, days that sweeten to spring?

Is there a lore to learn? Is there a truth to be told?
Hath the new dawn a ray that never flashed from the old?

Day that deepens to night, night that broadens to day,
What is the meaning of all, what is the word they say?

Silence for aye and aye, and the heart beats never cease.
Till toil and life and the day are the night and death and peace.

—John Hall Ingham in Scribner's.

POSING AT THE PIANO.

Paderewski Thinks Performers Should Look Effective While Playing.

When Paderewski was in New York, he was calling at a prominent Wall street man's home in Fifth avenue when the broker told him he would like to have his opinion of his daughter's playing. The great pianist courteously replied that nothing would give him more pleasure.

After the young lady had dashed off several selections Paderewski said:

"To get the greatest enjoyment from the piano the music must not only be heard, but the performer should be seen. The performer should therefore be careful of his or her position at the instrument.

"I will be frank with you and say that I preferred to see rather than hear your daughter play. I might better say that I looked more than I listened. She held herself correctly. There is nothing I hate more than a listless, careless posture of the body while playing.

"Then there was life in her touch. Her fingers fairly sparkled as they ran over the board and touched the keys, rebounding from them with a snap that was exhilarating to behold. Her manner of using her hands and her elbowing, if I may so call it, showed proper training also.

"I will therefore add that my sense of hearing would have been equally delighted doubtless if my sense of sight had not been so completely monopolized. I compliment the young lady on her accomplishment."

"There is wisdom in that," said the broker in repeating the conversation. "Teachers of the piano should give far more attention to this matter than they now do."—New York Advertiser.

We are authorized to announce the name of James A. McKean, of Smethport, as a candidate for nomination for the office of County Treasurer, subject to the decision of the Republican county convention.

We are authorized to announce the name of Thomas B. Clark, of Bradford, as a candidate for nomination for the office of County Treasurer, subject to the decision of the Republican County Convention.

REPUBLICAN COUNTY CONVENTION.

BRADFORD, PA., April 10, 1895.

To the Republican Electors of McKean County:

Pursuant to action of Republican County Committee, notice is hereby given that a Republican County Convention will be held at the Court House at Smethport on Tuesday, the 11th day of June, 1895, at two o'clock in the afternoon for the purpose of nominating a candidate for County Treasurer and electing two delegates to the Republican State Convention to be held at Harrisburg on a day to be hereafter named, and for the transaction of any other business that may be properly presented.

Primaries for the election of delegates to said County Convention (two from each district) and members of the county committee for the ensuing year (one from each district) will be held in each of the respective election districts of the county, at the regular polling places, on Saturday, the 8th day of June 1895, between the hours of seven o'clock and nine o'clock in the evening, excepting in such election districts where the hours have been changed.

THE census of 1890 showed a population in the United States of 62,622,250. There were 32,067,880 males and 30,554,370 females, or 1,513,510 more men than women. No wonder there are so many bachelors, and no excuse for the old maids.

THERE are only seven candidates in Potter county seeking the nomination of sheriff on the Republican ticket. Four of the same stripe are telling their friends that they are the most suitable persons for the office of county treasurer, while five more of the same stripe are making strenuous efforts for the useless office of associate judge. After the convention's work is finished there will be 13 disappointed aspirants—an unlucky number.

HUGH MCCULLOCH, who was twice Secretary of the United States Treasury, died at his home near Washington, D. C., on Friday last at the age of 87 years. He was born in the State of Maine in 1808, and at the age of 25 years he moved to Fort Wayne, Ind. He was appointed controller of the currency under Secretary Chase. In March, 1865, he was made Secretary of the Treasury, and was appointed to the same position under President Arthur. He was the only man who ever had the distinguished honor of filling that responsible position twice. Thus has passed away one of the ablest financiers of history, who filled that office in the darkest hour of our nation's history.

WALTER Q. GRESHAM, Secretary of State, died at the Arlington Hotel, in Washington, at 1:15 a. m. Tuesday. About the first of May he was taken with acute pleurisy, but afterwards he became better and there were strong hopes of his recovery. On May 25th a relapse occurred and pneumonia set in, and from that time on until Tuesday morning there was a gradual decline. General Gresham was born in Harrison county, Ind., March 17, 1832. He studied law and was admitted to the bar. Was elected to the State Legislature, but resigned his office in August, 1861, and entered the army as Lieut. Col. of the 38th Indiana Volunteers. He was breveted Brigadier General and finally Major General before the close of the war. He ran for Congress in 1866, but was defeated. President Grant afterwards appointed him to the position of district Judge of Indiana. In 1880 he was a candidate for United States Senator, but was defeated by General Harrison. He was Postmaster General in President Arthur's cabinet. When Secretary Folger died Gresham was appointed Secretary of the Treasury. Afterwards he was appointed United States Circuit Judge for Wisconsin, Illinois and Indiana. In 1892 the Populist party wanted him to be their Presidential candidate but he declined. That year he affiliated with the Democratic party and Cleveland made him Secretary of State. The remains were taken to Chicago for burial.

THE State Senators and Representatives who have labored so hard to defeat the apportionment bill are fixing themselves for a long term of political retirement, and they are certainly deserving of it. Our present senatorial apportionment has not been changed since 1874. Under the census of 1890 the ratio would be 103,000 population to each Senatorial district. The 17th district, Lebanon county, has a population of 48,131; the 10th district, Bucks county, has 70,615; the 19th, Chester county, has 89,377; the 9th, Delaware, has 74,683; the 16th, Lehigh, has 76,531; the 18th, Northampton, has 84,220; the 22nd, Pike, Monroe and Carbon counties, has 68,147; the 26th, Susquehanna and Wayne 71,103; the 23nd, Bradford and Wyoming, has 75,124; the 33rd, Cumberland and Adams, has 80,751, and so on. Several more could be added to the list, all of which run from 15,000 to 37,000 below the apportionment. On the other hand Luzerne county, with a population of 201,203, has only one Senator when she is justly entitled to two. The county of Allegany, with a population of 551,968, has only four Senators and is entitled to one more. Several more are nearly as bad. Those law makers who think they can juggle matters to suit themselves had better take heed, or the people will be heard from in a way at the next general election that will not be pleasant to the present incumbents on the hill at Harrisburg.

UPON whom will Cleveland place the mantle of Secretary of State? Will Wilson receive another promotion, or Carlisle be the fortunate one? CAPTURING A NEW INDUSTRY.

Eli Perkins Has a Talk with Gov. McKinley About Chicory.

One day I was talking with Gov. McKinley, in Columbus, about starting new industries in America.

"My one great idea," said the Governor, "is that we should have all the great industries in America. Any nation that goes off to trade will be poor. We should use our money and labor right here. We can do trade at home if there are certain things, like tea or rubber or coffee, that we can't make. I would have them come in free. I am a free-trader with necessities which we can't make, like tea or coffee, and for a protective tariff on everything which we can make."

"But how high would you have this protection?" I asked.

"Just high enough," said the Governor, "to enable us to pay our laborers good American wages. If we are competing with a country which has wages as high as ours, then I am for free-trade or for reciprocity with that nation. We don't want any protection against any country that has wages as high as our own any more than we want protection between the States. Indiana don't need protection against Ohio."

"How would you go to work to get a new industry in this country?" I asked.

"I would do as we did with Coats thread. We put the protection on American made thread so high that they had to move their Glasgow thread works to this country and pay our people big wages. Now we are getting the wages and the articles manufactured, too."

"By the way," said the Governor, relaxing into a reminiscent mood, "did you ever hear the story of chicory?"

"What was it?" I asked.

"Well," said the Governor, "it was quite romantic. When the Republican tariff revisors came to 'C' in the tariff list my eyes fell on chicory. 'What's chicory?' I asked. No one knew. No one had ever seen it growing. It had never been raised or manufactured in this country."

"What did you do with it?" I asked.

"We simply did as we did with almost every other industry. We said, 'Well, let raw chicory come free and put a good protective tariff on manufactured chicory.' But when we came to look at the old tariff we found that there was a tariff on both manufactured and raw chicory."

"Then you took off the tariff of raw chicory and stole their manufactures?" I suggested.

"Yes, that is just what we did. Here is a case where we took off a tariff on raw material and the result was wonderful! In less than 90 days after the bill became a law 47 chicory factories came to this country from France and Belgium. They located in Hoboken, Jersey City, Newark, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Toledo, and we were soon paying millions of dollars for chicory wages in this country. We actually captured a new industry worth millions of dollars to the nation."

Not long after this talk with Gov. McKinley I was traveling in Michigan and saw handbills all over the State calling on the farmers to raise chicory for the Detroit factory.

The next week my engagements brought me to O'Neill, Nebraska, and what was my surprise to see one man raising 300 acres of chicory and manufacturing it for use with coffee. The whole country was stirred up about the new product, which was taking the place of wheat and corn.

I found chicory grew like a parsnip. It can stay out all winter and the crop is 13 tons of green chicory roots or 6,000 pounds of dry roots to the acre. Dry chicory, when burnt and ground, sells readily for from 5 cents to 7 cents per pound, wholesale, and as $300 for an acre of ground is a good return the O'Neill German Chicory Company was prosperous and made chicory cheaper than ever before.

When I asked this farmer away up on the Elkhorn Valley Railroad how he came to go into chicory, he said:

"Well, the McKinley bill, putting a big tariff on manufactured chicory and letting raw chicory come free, forced the Belgian, French and German manufacturers to come to America. But away out west here the transportation on European raw chicory is so high that I found it paid to raise it. I started with a little in my garden. I got the idea from reading a letter about chicory in the New York Sun. Then I raised 10 acres, then 400, then 1,600 and this year 2,000."

"Where did you get your machinery from for cooking and grinding it?" I asked.

"That came from Germany, but our American mechanics are improving on it here. Chicory used to retail for 15 cents a pound all over the United States but dealers can retail it for from 6 to 9 cents now and make money. It is a cheap drink when coffee is 30 cents a pound, and coffee with one-third chicory is much improved. The Germans and French, at home and in America, do not think a good cup of coffee can be made without one-fourth chicory. It acts like mocha on strong coffee. It makes it mild and delicious."

I remembered when I was in Paris, at Binion's, the swell restaurant of the Boulevard des Italiennes, that the chef used one-fourth chicory to make their famous coffee that set all Paris wild.

HOW TO CAPTURE THE LINEN INDUSTRY

"I believe," said McKinley, "that with protection in America we can capture the business of raising and manufacturing all our linen, just as we have captured the nail, tin, chicory, silk and carpet industries, and make all of these things in the end cheaper for our people. I would agree to have the Belfast linen manufacturers in this country in two years, and Minnesota covered with flax in the place of cheap wheat, if I could dictate the policy. I think that $25,000,000 a year saved to the United States on linen is worth trying for, and proper protection would do it."

Mr. Dana tells me that he raises chicory in his famous garden at Flushing and uses the green tops for salad.

Now comes the news from Nebraska that the State is so delighted with the protective policy which brought a great industry into their State that the Legislature has added a bounty on both chicory and sugar.

The million dollar beet sugar plant at Norfolk has been found large enough to manufacture their great North Platte beet crop into sugar, and now they are turning the great Grand Island sugar house into a chicory factory. Millions of bushels of corn and wheat will go out of Nebraska and, by and by, thanks to protection, the farmer will get a better price for wheat. How much wiser is such a policy than the policy of killing an industry. With the tariff on wool, sheep were going all over Dakota and Minnesota taking out wheat and enriching the worn out land. Now sheep are being killed, the industry destroyed and $25,000,000 annually will go to Asia for wool.

Let us be glad that the new industry of chicory has escaped Mr. Wilson's poisoned arrow.

The Above Heading Means Just What It Says.

DON'T forget that Mudge & Benjamin, Hardware Dealers, are in Olean to stay and help people who want goods.

DON'T think you can purchase at any store in the county, quality and price compared, as cheaply as you can at Mudge & Benjamin's Hardware store.

DON'T be led into the belief that you can do as well in some small town as at our store.

DON'T pay out your hard-earned money for goods you may want in the building or hardware line when you know you can purchase your goods and save money at our store.

DON'T go to the store nearest you at home and pay more money for goods because your fare will cost you something on the cars. You will more than save your fare by trading with us.

DON'T look for Ranges, Cook Stoves, Boilers, Kettles, Tinware, Hardware, Graniteware and Wash Tubs, Wash Boards, Clothes Wringers, Children's Wagons and Velocipeds until you look over our stock.

CROCKERY.

The questions are these: Can the house which buys most buy cheapest? Must not the store which sells most sell cheapest? Can you not suit yourself best where you find the greatest variety?

We buy most. We sell most. We display the largest variety?

Don't make a mistake when you want to buy crockery.

RUBBER PAINT.

Rubber paint lasts. It doesn't look better when new than some other paints, but it looks better when a season old.

Some who have used it say it lasts five times as long as common paint. Three times as long would be safer.

Certainly not another paint in the world can compare with it.

BICYCLES.

We sell bicycles this year—Not some kind made so cheaply that they move like a dray horse.

A man who rides a bicycle for fun wants to move fast. His wheel must be perfect in its mechanism.

We sell the Syracuse—the kind with crimson rims.

Come and see how you like them.

—Ed Hungerford has been having a serious tussel with the quinsy, but is better at this time.

—Mrs. S. C. Hyde wishes to thank her friends for their acts of kindness shown to her during her sad bereavement.

—F. C. Pierce has an advertisement on our second page calling attention to the "Rambler" wheel, of which he is the agent.

—Michael Gallup, the new superintendent of the chemical works at Hazelhurst, is making matters hum around that establishment.

—E. M. Roberts advertises Deering mowers, reapers, binders and rakes in this week's MINER. Nothing but up-to-date machinery.

—Our hustling advertisers are wide awake this week. Do not fail to carefully read them over, and see the wonderful bargains offered.

—The band was out for a practice on Tuesday evening. They are becoming very proficient and rank among the very best in this section.

—Those who own property along Church street between Main and Water streets had better see to the repairs of the walk to save trouble.

—The Young Women's Christian Temperance Union will hold their next meeting this (Friday) evening at the M. E. parsonage. All are invited to attend.

—The B., B. & K. is the busiest road in the country. All of its patrons are making a great kick because they cannot get cars enough for shipping purposes.

—M. L. Armstrong says the Pope M'f'g Co. are many thousand orders behind on the Columbia and Hartford bicycles, which is a good indication of their superior quality.

—There will be a pie social at the residence of Mrs. A. N. Crandall, on Green street next Wednesday evening, June 5. A short program has been arranged and a good time is assured.

—In this week's MINER will be found an engraving of the East Smethport Racket store, to which is appended a list of the prices at which goods are sold at that hustling establishment.

—The Era gives half a column in describing the Sylfan [illegible] given in Bradford [illegible] night and pronounces it one of the best musical entertainments ever given in that city.

—Simon & Dorr [illegible] Eldred call attention to the fact that they are prepared to fill your order for export beer, native wines [illegible] through the medium of an ad. which will be found in another column.

—We are turning out some beautiful work in the way of wedding cards. The finest of samples to select from. Anyone contemplating such an important step should be sure to call on us. We will suit you.

—Two games of ball were played yesterday between the Oaks and a Bradford team. The first game resulted in a score of 11 to 6 in favor of Smethport and the second concluded in a score of 21 to [illegible] in favor of Smethport.

—The special sale now going on at the store of O. D. Bush at East Smethport has attracted considerable attention and business has been rushing there for several weeks. Remember this sale will conclude in the next week or ten days.

[illegible] Ormsby [illegible] wives [illegible] farm [illegible] last Monday and deposited it [illegible] [illegible] the memory of the departed ones.

—Last Tuesday we saw a photograph of the children who attended Miss [illegible] school, and for a group of so many faces it excels any photo for clearness of features ever presented to us. Every face appears as clear as though the original stood before you.

—What's the matter with our Potter county girls? Not a marriage license has been taken out this month, and we are sure that the boys are on the alert so the fault must lie with the gentle sex. Can it be possible that the coming woman movement has anything to do with the matter.—Enterprise.

—St. Luke's church was well filled last Sunday during Memorial Day services. Rev. J. H. McCandless officiating. His sermon was excellent, and the music very fine. The audience returned to their homes bearing the memory of the nation's brave defenders.

—The rapidity of the mail service between here and East Smethport is enough to make [illegible] There was a letter mailed at East Smethport for the MINER on Saturday that we received on Monday night at 7:15. A letter would have reached Denver, Col., in that time.

—This week we are obliged to print another supplement in order to make room for our crowded advertising matter. The patronage we are getting in this line [illegible] beyond a doubt that our advertisers are satisfied with the returns which come from occupying space in the MINER.

—The contract was signed last Monday by Welsert & Davidge with the board of trade at Coudersport for the erection of a veneer works. The works will be located on the Ellison property at the upper end of town and will give employment to 100 hands. Good for Coudersport.

—[illegible] Democrat says: [illegible] [illegible]

—The enterprising firm of [illegible] [illegible] They carry a large stock of lumber, shingles, sash, doors, etc. [illegible] They will be pleased to exhibit their goods to all who may call.

Last Sunday, at Allegany, the colleg[illegible] team of St. Bonaventure defeated the Oakdales of Buffalo by a score of 20 to [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] pounds more than he did last year.

—Little Bertha Sturdevant, who has been a sufferer for a long time with what was supposed to be rheumatism, was [illegible] Dr. F. O. Br[illegible] [illegible]

—Mrs. Elmer Truman, who has been suffering for some time with rheumatism, was taken Monday night with a severe attack of neuralgia around the heart. She was frantic, and force was required to keep her from scratching her face and tearing her clothing. Dr. McCoy was summoned and relieved her sufferings. At the time of this writing she is very much improved.

—That Smethport will celebrate this year is an assured fact. The committee of last year will have the matter in charge, and if they do as well as they did a year ago Smethport will have one of the biggest blow-outs she has ever had. The program will be varied and interesting and very much improved upon from last year. Do not make arrangements to go out of town.

—A large and appreciative audience listened to the war sermon delivered last Sunday evening by Rev. J. W. Sanborn. The sermon was brim full of patriotism, good sound common sense and running over with information. Mr. Sanborn talks just as though he had been in the thickest of the fight in some of the battles of the late war. His idea of instilling patriotism in the minds of the young is very proper.

—The seated valuation of the county outside of Bradford city amounts to $3,-323,167, the unseated $1,551,051, making a total of $4,874,218, on which there is a levy of 5 mills for county purposes, 3 mills for poor fund, 1 mill for poor building fund and 1 mill for poor bond fund, a total of 10 mills. The assessed valuation of the city of Bradford amounts to $1,-[illegible],420 on which there is a tax levy of 5 mills for county purposes.

—There is a person in Eldred who is too mean to live. Last Friday night some one set a large quantity of carpet tacks in the bicycle path along the road between the furniture store and the tannery. Two riders came along there and saw them. Getting off and picking them up they counted 130 tacks, about a dozen of which were sticking in the tires of one of the rider's wheels. This is about as mean a trick as we have ever heard of, and the person who did it ought to be horsewhipped.

—The Women's edition of the Bradford Star arrived too late for notice this week.

—What's the matter with the Bradford Star? For almost a week the paper published one day would not reach us until the next day.

—We hope when the 4th of July comes around some bright little girl will have forethought enough to make up a lot of button hole bouquets and have them around early for sale.

—The entire procession in the parade desire to return thanks to Walter Evans for his thoughtfulness in furnishing them with a drink of water before their return march from the cemetery.

—Bishop Mallalieu preached to a fair-sized audience Wednesday night at the M. E. church. His sermon was fine, abounding in the rich promises of God, which never fail. His voice, rich and musical, his words were most eloquent and went straight to the hearts of his listeners.

—There should be a liberal response on the part of the business men of Smethport when the paper is circulated to raise funds for the 4th of July celebration. R. E. Burdick has this matter in charge and we sincerely hope that he will have abundant success. Every good citizen should be interested and give all the assistance they can.

—Mrs. E. S. Bevier, whose late husband was a member of Crosby Tent, Knights of the Maccabees, has received a warrant for $3,000, being the amount for which he was insured. This is another evidence of the promptness of this order in paying its death claims. They always have the money on hand and pay as soon as proof of death are filed.

—The Prohibition State convention will be held at Pittsburg on June 6. McKean county will send the following delegates: Reuben Dennis, Eldred; M. C. Field, Port Allegany; Elisha K. Kane, Kushequa; R. J. Blackwell, Kane; A. T. Foster, Bradford township; Geo. S. Stewart and S. M. Love, Rixford. Half fare rates have been secured for those who may wish to attend.

—Ben Wood, a Big Shanty driller, was held up by two footpads at Degolia Saturday night. He was walking along the railroad track when the highwaymen [illegible] confronted him. One pulled [illegible] and thrust [illegible] in his face [illegible] went through his pockets securing wages, watch and 75 cents. "You haven't got much money with you tonight," remarked one of the robbers, and without further remarks the scene ended.—Era.

—Last Sunday evening — Canfield left his horse standing, tied on King street. When he came back he stepped suddenly in front of the horse and frightened it. It commenced to back and pulled the bridle over his head and then took a short cut through the garden between the residences of Ed. Daly and Erastus Curtis down [illegible] After cultivating the garden he took a zig zag journey up Main street and was finally stopped in front of the bank. Two wheels of the buggy were utterly demolished.

—Last Tuesday morning W. A. Young showed us a pair of minnie bullets picked up on the Spottsylvania battle ground about 100 feet from the spot where brave General Sedgewick fell. The peculiarity of these two balls are that one is driven into the rear of the other [illegible] must have been [illegible] as the [illegible] first minnie ball [illegible] The only conclusion to be arrived at is that the first ball was fired and thrown away in the rear and its force being nearly spent, the second ball was fired well up in front and striking the first ball with full force, buried itself therein. These bullets were picked up on the battle ground by M. Chatfield, now of Farmers Valley, who formerly lived near Spottsylvania, Va. Mr. Chatfield says they are Union bullets, as the minnie balls used by the rebels were not grooved. Mr. C. further says that he cut down one small pine tree that had over eighty minnie balls buried in its body.

—Amos Houghtailing is a resident of Ridgway. He is a married man with a family of growing children. When he was about 25 years of age and while working at [illegible] his hands were blown off by a discharge of dynamite and was otherwise injured. The hands were taken off at the wrists. Since then he has kept store, written insurance policies, tallied and shipped lumber and engaged in other occupations which it would seem most of necessity be closed to a man who had no hands to use. He writes a good hand—or rather a good arm, for he holds his pen between the stumps of his arms. He takes considerable pride in his home, and this spring has spaded up his garden and put it into proper condition, besides doing other jobs of cleaning up. He can dress and feed himself and is so well able to take care for himself that he often goes off on journeys lasting several weeks. It is also whispered that he can play a good game of draw poker.—Republican. Is the last hearsay or genuine experience.

Memorial Day.

Thursday morning dawned warm, and before nine o'clock the thermometer had made rapid strides upwards but this fact did not have the least effect upon those who were [illegible] [illegible] the W. N. Y. & P. branch was met at the depot by [illegible] who escorted [illegible] Crosby band. [illegible] before the exercises of the day proper, a game of ball was played between the Oaks and a team from Bradford. The game was won by the Oaks by a score of 11 to 6. In the afternoon another game was played and the Oaks were again victorious, the score being 21 and 7.

About half past one the various organizations who were take part in the parade began to assemble and by 1:40 the order "Forward March" was given. The line was formed in the following order: Marshal [illegible] Chief of Staff Breneman well mounted on horseback, and we wish to say that we believe that it was one of the finest that Smethport has witnessed in many a year. Next came the Smethport Band under the guidance of Drum Major Holman, who makes an ideal man for the [illegible] [illegible] the Smethport Hose Co. This was the first appearance of the firemen in their new uniforms, and many complimentary remarks were heard on their fine appearance. Judge Knapp makes a fine commanding officer, and he had his men well in hand. But one of the most interesting features of the parade was the little children who took up the line of march on the sidewalk from the Court House to the Wright House. There were 60 of these young misses ranging from 6 to 10 years of age. They were in charge of Miss Burch who is deserving of much praise for the credible appearance they made.

After the usual exercises at the cemetery the line was again formed in reverse order, with sides in front, and the march resumed back to the Court House. Long before the return from the cemetery there was an eager crowd waiting for the doors to be thrown open that they might obtain seats, and when the doors were opened it was hard work to reserve seats for the visiting organizations.

The exercises were opened by a song from the choir, which was followed by a prayer by Rev. J. W. Sanborn. The next feature was the flag drill, with appropriate texts and songs, by the 60 young misses before mentioned. Miss Burch certainly has a wonderful influence over young children, and we are of the opinion that it would be hard to fill her place. A duett by Misses Edna Church and Morrison came next, which was good. President of the Day, W. P. Eckels, in his usual happy style, made a few preliminary remarks, at the close of which he introduced the orator of the day, Rev. C. V. Wilson, of Olean. Mr. Wilson is a speaker who has the great faculty of holding the attention of his audience from start to finish. He spoke for upwards of an hour, and we are free to say that it was an address replete with high and elevating thoughts and suggestions, and our hope is that some of them may find a deep lodging place in the hearts of his appreciative audience. At the conclusion of his address the audience sang America and were dismissed by Rev. G. W. Halliwell. Thus closed one of the most successful Memorial Days in the history of Smethport. We would like to give a more extended account this week, but time and space forbids.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Bouton and son, Victor, departed for Buffalo yesterday morning.

Hon. R. L. White, of Roulette, Potter county, was a welcome caller at this office Wednesday.

Mrs. Harris, the mother of Mrs. Brandvelar, went to Bradford on Wednesday for a few days visit.

Mrs. Cliff Burlingame took her little boy to Bradford on Tuesday morning to have his eyes treated.

F. J. Holmes spent Sunday in Rochester with his wife, who is visiting friends in that beautiful city.

Mrs. M. A. Sprague, who has been sick for about three weeks, was out enjoying [illegible]

F. B. McCoy, of Mt. Jewett, visited friends in town Sunday night and started for Buffalo Monday morning.

R. R. McQuistion, of Rixford, and Z. Wilson, of Duke Centre, were guests at the Grand Central last Saturday.

M. F. McCarthy and Dr. J. J. Cannan, the latter having just settled in Bradford, came over to the hub on Monday.

Our old and esteemed friend, Rev. F. F. Cornell, of Port Allegany, addressed the people of Wrights last Sunday.

Rev. J. W. Sanborn preached at the district convention of the Epworth League at Olean Saturday afternoon.

W. L. Holman, master mechanic of the Renovo railroad shops, and his family were the guests of Supt. Ryan over Sunday.

Claude McAhon spent a few days in town visiting friends the first part of the week. He is the same ever genial Claude.

J. G. Williams and sister and Ezra Taylor came down from the great oil town, Ormsby, and visited friends Sunday.

[illegible] J. C. Breneman and family, in company with Mrs. George Walker and little daughter, drove to Bradford Wednesday.

J. W. Walters and B. C. Tabor rode their wheels over from Port Allegany on Tuesday afternoon returning home the next day.

Mr. B. D. Burnham and wife, of Eldred, visited the hub on Monday and did not forget the MINER office. Many thanks, come again.

Charles Donahue, of Ormsby, was down on Monday night. He says Ormsby is the liveliest town this side of the Rocky Mountains.

Misses Mattie Neill and Edna McKallif, two of Summit City's bright young ladies, were here Tuesday taking in the sights of our beautiful town.

Mrs. W. K. Wright and son Donald of Renovo, were visiting Comrade Wright over Sunday. Mrs. Wright is a daughter of the late Mr. Hyde.

George Walker, of Washington, Pa., returned home Monday morning leaving Mrs. Walker and daughter, Marguerite, to visit Mrs. Breneman.

Mrs. S. C. Hyde, of Emporium, accompanied the remains of her departed husband [illegible] and was the guest of [illegible] while here.

W. J. Walsh and his sisters took a pleasure ride to Ormsby Sunday last but coming home the pleasure was somewhat dampened by a heavy shower.

M. A. Sylvander and Charles Oberg, two of Mt. Jewett's prominent citizens, called while in town last Monday. Mr. Sylvander is a new subscriber.

James McConnachy, conductor on the C. & P. A. R. R., visited the hub last Saturday for the first time in a number of years. Jim is always welcome.

J. H. Furel and M. J. Armstrong drove to Olean on Sunday to witness the ball game between the Oakdales of Buffalo and the St. Bonaventure team.

Mrs. D. Bell, Mrs. J. B. Hall, Mrs. [illegible] Woodin [illegible] of Olean were guests of Mr. Bell's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Hall over Sunday.

The many friends of Mrs. Sherwood will be pleased to learn that she has recovered her usual health after having been confined to her room for about three weeks.

Miss Myra Ryan departed for Pittsburg on Monday, where she will enter the Western Pennsylvania hospital to receive a course of instruction as professional nurse.

Tuesday morning we had the pleasure of greeting Mr. and Mrs. Leon Larrabee, of Coudersport, who drove over from Port Allegany, and while here kindly remembered the MINER office.

L. C. Haynes, of Olean, was circulating among his friends in town on Wednesday. He says he has recently formed the habit of opening his store at "6 o'clock in the morning." Perhaps so.

C. A. Burdick and Sam Rifle took a trip to Mt. Jewett and other points in that vicinity on Tuesday. Chet has got on to a new scheme of insurance. If a man does not come down he will go after him with a Rifle.

The rising young attorney, C. W. Catlin, of Port Allegany, was over Wednesday and made us a very pleasant call. Mr. Catlin was in Olean a few days ago and delivered an eloquent address to the people who live near Eldred.

J. C. Hyde and family, of Duluth, Minn., were here in attendance at the funeral of S. C. Hyde. The family spent Sunday and Monday here visiting their many friends, starting for their distant home on Tuesday morning.

Adelbert Karhan, proprietor of the Oleona House at Oleona, Pa., which is one of the most celebrated fishing resorts in the state, and his son, Albert, were welcome visitors on Saturday and stopped with Comrade Wright.

F. E. Baldwin, of Austin, with some other gentlemen went to Hulls on a fishing trip. Frank became somewhat unruly and the rest of the party threw him into the stream. From the reports that reached us they all enjoyed themselves.

Cards are out announcing the marriage of Mr. Andrew H. Washburn to Miss Jessie M. Edwards, both of Coryville, to take place at the residence of the bride's parents on Wednesday, June 12. The best wishes of the MINER will follow the happy couple to their new home.

Tom Clark came over from Austin last Friday looking somewhat sleepy on account of the arrival of a young gentleman at his home Thursday night in rather destitute circumstances. It kept Tom hustling all night to provide the necessaries for the new comer. All are doing finely. Cigars!

J. A. Swanson, of Warren, Gustof Lindner, Hammar and Lundquist, of Ridgway, were in Mt. Jewett last Friday and organized the Scandinavian Brotherhood of America. This is the first order of the kind in McKean county but the chances are that ere long there will more spring up. Let the good work go on, as it is well worthy of being patronized.

Geo. L. Young, of Amboy, Ohio, is visiting friends in town. Mr. Young learned the printer's trade on the old Citizen in 1857 which was formerly published at Smethport, and helped remove the MINER from Bradford here in 1863, and afterwards worked on the latter paper several months. He then published the Citizen at Emporium for several months, which proved to be an unsuccessful venture. His many old friends are glad of the pleasure in renewing old acquaintences. There is a very interesting item of history connected with his early life. When a small boy, only 11 years of age, he was conductor on the first underground railroad train ever run between here and Warren, having as passengers three poor slaves who had made their escape from bondage, a circumstance of which he should feel justly proud.

A Detective Arrested.

There was great excitement in the village of Kinzua yesterday. Squire Lamb of Mortons had seen a man walking toward the village named, and at once concluded that the man was Bert Blanchard, the outlaw. Lamb sent word to Constable Duthill, of Kinzua, to look out for the suspect. The constable was busy and deputized James White to make the arrest. White laid in wait for his man and when the latter appeared he was placed under arrest. There is no lockup in Kinzua and the arrested man was placed in a room at a hotel and a guard of fearless men was placed at each window. [illegible] He was given his dinner and a glass of [illegible] to keep him in good spirits. In the meantime the telephone and telegraph wires were kept hot with queries to Smethport [illegible]

[illegible] the description of Blanchard. After a long time it was learned that Blanchard is a blonde with blue eyes and [illegible] the color of [illegible] The prisoner had a black mustache and [illegible] more like a Turk than a McKean county thug. The prisoner was searched and in his pocket was found a complete description of Bert Blanchard and [illegible] [illegible] was a coincidence.

What was he doing with that description of Blanchard?

"Why you [illegible] have arrested a detective," said the suspect. "I am J. H. Walker [illegible] working on the Blanchard case myself. I expect to locate him in a short time and get the $500 reward."

"I thought it was $500 reward," said Deputy White. "That was why we put such a heavy guard over you. I thought sure you was he." Walker spurned the amateur thief catcher and said that Kinzua people ought to read the papers. He then took his departure for Warren.

Walker is well known to the authorities in Bradford. When [illegible] here he is usually arrested as a vagrant. He has for years been telling people that he is a detective and he believes the words [illegible] true.—Era.

Obituary.

Samuel C. Hyde, the first Worshipful Master of McKean lodge, No. 388, organized June 5, 1867, died at his home in Emporium on Wednesday morning, May 22nd, after about three hours illness at the age of 73 years and 5 months from a stroke of paralysis, it being the third one. In 1855 Mr. Hyde moved to Smethport and resided here until 1868, when he moved to Emporium and has been a resident of that place ever since. Arrangements were made for the funeral here under the auspices of the Masonic fraternity. On Saturday at noon over 30 of the brethren marched to the depot to meet the remains, but by some mismanagement they failed to arrive, but came however, on the 7:40 p. m. train and were conducted to Rose Hill cemetary by the members of the Masonic fraternity and friends. Being rather late, it was necessary to hurry matters before it became too dark. The beautiful Masonic ceremonies were very impressive under the circumstances, and as the shades of night gathered about the company it doubly impressed upon all present that a long and eventful life had closed, that one whom the mourning friends had known and loved so many years had gone to meet his reward in that land where we all hope to greet him when our time shall come to answer the call of the Arch Angel. Mrs. Hyde and three children survive the deceased: J. C. Hyde, of Duluth, Minn., Mrs. Wright, of Renovo and Mrs. Thaddeus Moore, of Emporium.

Interesting News From Various Localities Picked up by Our Regular Correspondents.

ORMSBY.

A peculiar and somewhat strange accident occurred at the Matson & Co. well No. 13 on Tuesday. The well had been completed, and had turned out to be a powerful gasser. About 400 feet of casing had been put in and the well plugged in order to connect with the gas line, but before the connections could be made the pressure of gas was so strong that it blew the 400 feet of casing clear over the derrick, and what is more [illegible] a single joint broke until the entire amount had shot clear over the derrick. Those who saw it say that the noise produced sounded like a huge sky rocket going up.

A serious accident occurred at the Matson & Co. well on Tuesday last. As John [illegible], the driller, was assisting in shooting the well which had been completed he did not get out of the way in time and was painfully injured in the side and back, besides having one of his shoulders broken. Dr. Fark, of Smethport, was called and attended the injured man. He is doing as well as could be expected under the circumstances, but just what the outcome of his injuries will be is not known.

That Ormsby is destined to become quite an important oil town is now conceded by the most skeptical. Still we do not think there is room for many more business places just at present, but if the town continues to grow as rapidly as it has in the past few months there might be a chance, but until then we would not advise any new ventures.

Your correspondent dropped into the store of [illegible] Fry and we were somewhat surprised to find such a fine line so tastefully displayed. These gentlemen are new comers, but are nevertheless welcome. When asked in regard to business they said that it was as good if not better than they expected.

Dr. F. C. Pierce was up from Smethport on Tuesday last with his kodak and was busy taking views from different points of observation.

Campbell & McDade are hustling the meat business these days. They are both men of good business qualities and we predict for them a successful business career.

Marvelous Results.

From a letter written by Rev. J. Gunderman, of Dimondale, Mich., we are permitted to make this extract: "I have no hesitation in recommending Dr. King's New Discovery, as the results were almost marvelous in the case of my wife. While I was pastor of the Baptist Church at Rives Junction she was brought down with pneumonia succeeding la grippe. Terrible paroxysms of coughing would last hours with little interruption and it seemed as if she could not survive them. A friend recommended Dr. King's New Discovery, it was quick in its work and highly satisfactory in results." Trial bottles free at F. R. Foster's and A. B. Armstrong & Co.'s drug store. DEATH OF PHIL KEARNY.

Shot While Leading a Column at the Battle of Chantilly.

Colonel W. L. Goldsmith of Mississippi gives the following account of the death of General Kearny, who was killed by soldiers of the Forty ninth Georgia regiment in September, 1862

The battle of Chantilly was fought late in the afternoon amid a severe storm of wind and rain. It was a gloomy, dark, depressing afternoon, and night was fast approaching. Our brigade had not fired a gun, but was on the extreme left of our forces and behind a worm rail fence grown up thick with saplings and bushes —an excellent place for ambushing. The fighting was all to our right. I had charge of the skirmish line, some 200 yards in advance of our line of battle, and in a cornfield which gently sloped up toward the direction of the Federals. Presently I saw a line of blue majestically moving toward us several hundred yards away, and I remember distinctly the powerful impression it made on my mind at the time. As it came forward, slowly and grandly, amid the thickening gloom of that dreary September evening, it reminded me of an inrolling blue wave of the great ocean coming toward us. They had no skirmish line, and I withdrew our forces back to the main line, and as far as I could I tried to get the men to hold their fire until the enemy came close up. Some of our men commenced firing before the enemy came close enough, which spoiled the whole game. The Federals were checked and driven back so easily that we knew something was the matter and attributed their timidity to the demoralizing influence of defeat at second Manassas only a few days before, but on re-establishment of our skirmish line we discovered that the gallant General Phil Kearny had been killed, and this was the cause of the Federals weak attempt.

The grief of our entire army was marked and sincere over this sad news, and General Lee sent his body through the lines next day, to the great satisfaction and approval of us all. General Kearny was killed by the Forty ninth Georgia regiment, beloved and mourned by both blue and gray —Blue and Gray

MOTLEY UNIFORMS OF 1861.

Gay and Gorgeous Apparel of the Troops at the Beginning of the War.

The call to arms of 1861 found in the United States a number of militia regiments and innumerable volunteer organizations whose uniforms were as fanciful and varied as could well be conceived, being fashioned after the pattern of almost every known military type in Europe, from the highland costume of the famous British infantry to the hybrid, circuslike, useless dress of the French zouave and the banditlike clothing of the Sardinian bersaglieri. France had two years before beaten Austria, and there was a sort of French military craze on us just then, and our soldier boys affected their style. England had just decided that gray was the best and most serviceable color that could be adopted for the uniform of her volunteers, and many state troops and local companies were clad in that color.

But each corps dressed according to its own fancy and the frock coat, the swallow tailed coat, the jacket, the blouse, appeared in all varieties of shape and color, headdresses in equal variety, black belts, white belts, all sorts of accouterments could be seen—everything in fact, save the one thing most needful then and now —uniformity. This, thanks to hard, practical experience, was developed later on in the war but the first months found the boys in a very motley if gay and gorgeous apparel. This antebellum state of affairs applied equally to the military organizations of the southern states, and though perhaps the highlander did not obtain there to any great extent the zouave certainly did.—Detroit Free Press.

National Cemeteries.

The [illegible] return of Sarow wild war

[illegible] lived or lay

All [illegible] national cemeteries, it is a [illegible] are beautifully laid out [illegible] in superb condition. They have many features in common. [illegible] are at most on hillsides or upon uneven ground where they have been [illegible] graded. In almost all [illegible] graves are ranged in both circular and rectangular. The mounds are smoothly sodded and [illegible] with a simple but [illegible] granite placed [illegible]. The grassy lawns [illegible] carefully cut the walks and [illegible] and gravelled and shade trees with here and there a rustic seat beneath them [illegible] flowers and a profusion of ornamental shrubbery are planted throughout the surrounding grounds. The inclosures, as a rule, are well walled in with granite or other enduring masonry. All the cemeteries are provided with attractive administration buildings, and many contain imposing monuments erected both to individuals and to the dead soldiers collectively.—Exchange.

A Land Without Serf or Slave.

Here in this peaceful land of ours—here where the sun shines, where flowers grow, where children play—millions of armed men battled for the right and breasted on a thousand fields the iron storms of war. These [illegible] these incomparable men [illegible] the republic. They fulfilled [illegible] they fought to pass the dreams they [illegible] that all the great and good and wise and just have [illegible] had since man was man. But what of those who fell? There is no language to express the debt we owe, the love we bear to all the dead that died for us. Words are but barren sounds. We can but stand beside their graves and in the hush and silence feel what speech has never told. They fought, they died, and for the first time since man has kept a record of events the heavens bent above and domed a land without a serf, a servant or a slave.—Colonel R. G. Ingersoll

Memorial Day.

Memorial day holds a peculiar place among those set apart for special purposes by the people of this country. Though consecrated to the memory of those who fell on the field of battle, it is yet [illegible] the [illegible] which is sung. The note of thanksgiving [illegible] that of [illegible] and [illegible] spring, the awakening is on all [illegible] of the new life and glory of the nation.

STEEL TANKS

We furnish steel tanks with covers, all galvanized after completion, in nests of ten, 8 to 12 feet high and 30 to 36 inches in diameter, at 2½c. per gallon. They do not rust, shrink, leak, give taste to water, nor allow foreign substances to get in. They can be put in garret or barn and thus are protected from freezing. They take no setting up, are cheaper than wood. Tank substructures of all sizes made to order. Send for price list and designs for substructure and ornamental water supply.

AERMOTOR CO. CHICAGO.

2½ CTS PER GAL.

Did you ever stop to think how completely the Aermotor Co. made the modern windmill business? How it has monopolized this entire line of manufacture because of its ideas, inventions, designs, qualities and prices, or forced others to be [illegible] imitators? Witness the steel wheel, the back geared pumper, the high geared power mill, the steel towers, fixed and tilting, the galvanizing of work after completion, the grinder, centrifugal feed, the improved irrigating and other pumps, the all steel [illegible]—one of the most popular things we ever put out —the steel storage and stock tanks. Everything we have touched we have bettered and cheapened. It is the thing we have delighted in and it has paid. We have established a score of branch houses, so as to have all these goods near those who want them. The Aermotor Co. has but one more ambition. It wants to build and fill one more new building. It has 3 acres of land at its present location unoccupied by buildings. It expects to commence in June to cover that 3 acres with a single building, 7 stories high. This will give it 15 more acres of floor space. Then when the public demand requires more goods than can be produced with this added space, it will refuse to extend further or make any effort. It will have done its share to supply that demand. It will then turn away all new comers. UNTIL THAT TIME IT EXPECTS TO CONTINUE TO SUPPLY THE WORLD WITH THE GREATER PART OF ITS WIND WHEELS, TOWERS, GRINDERS, FEED CUTTERS, PUMPS, STEEL FRAME SAWS, STEEL STORAGE AND STOCK TANKS, STEEL SUBSTRUCTURE, ETC., ETC., GALVANIZED AFTER COMPLETION. IT WILL CONTINUE TO DEAL MOST LIBERALLY WITH THE PUBLIC, FURNISH REPAIRS AT A LOW PRICE, AND BE THE [illegible] THROUGHOUT THE WORLD. AERMOTOR CO., CHICAGO.
